It is clear that Marion, Massachusetts and the surrounding towns breed excellent sailors. With a combination of top-notch programs and local seaside schools, Buzzards Bay draws skilled athletes from all over the south shore to participate in local programs. Organizations such as the United States Sailing Team return to the area each year to host competitions and teach sailing classes.

From a young age, children in the area are encouraged to embrace their sea legs and learn to be comfortable on the water. Seaside schools such as Tabor Academy and the Buzzards Sailing School make it possible for students to learn sailing and practice skills on a daily basis.

William Ricketson, Olympic communications manager for the U.S. Sailing Team, said, "For beginners and casual cruisers, Buzzards Bay can provide a lifetime of enjoyment." He continued, "No matter which way the from Revolutionary times until well after the Civil War," said Ricketson. "Sailors today still look for the same landmarks as those enterprising sea captains of 300 years ago, and in this way, Buzzards Bay connects us to our past in a profound, tangible way."

Additionally, the Buzzards Bay Yacht Club has been known to host a variety of regattas for local sailors and visiting champions. Several annual competitions are held in the summer months, when Sippican Harbor is filled with young sailors learning the sport and seasoned professionals preparing for a busy season. In order to succeed in these competitive environments, it is important that athletes participate in frequent tournaments to enhance their skills. Luckily for us, Buzzards Bay is home to a handful of world-renowned sailing regattas.

"Buzzards Bay is in many ways the ultimate playground for the American sailor," said Ricketson. "For the competitive racer, the bay's unique geography allows the prevailing southwest breeze to strongly blow almost every day of the year, providing consistently exciting conditions."

Local upcoming events for the U.S. Sailing Team include the 2014 Dick Fontaine Memorial Distance Race, the 2014 Buzzards Bay Regatta, the Beverly Junior Regatta, the Tower Race Night, and the Hurricane Cup Pursuit Race toward the end of the month.

"From the remote haven of Cuttyhunk, to the secluded beaches of the Elizabeth Islands, and to the tranquil harbors of Marion and Padanaram," said Ricketson, about all that our beloved bay has to offer. "This is a patch of water like no other."

Ten Million Steps on Route 6

The Mattapoisett Free Library

By Jean Perry

Did you know that our very own Route 6 is the longest American highway ever created, spanning the entire United States mainland from Provincetown to Long Beach, California?

Author Joe Hurley could tell you all about it, and he will on August 13 at the Mattapoisett Free Library during "Behind the Scenes of Ten Million Steps." Hurley spent nearly ten months of his life getting to know the people and places along the way on an intimate voyage across America that spanned about 3,600 miles from coast to coast.

Hurley, a retired newspaper reporter living in New Milford, Connecticut, never knew that Route 6, which runs through Connecticut as well, was the longest highway in the country. He discovered that fact during a "shorter" walk across Connecticut, discovering all the little towns he had never been to and writing a series about his journey. On a map, Hurley noticed Route 6 began in Provincetown and thought, "Wow. That's a long way from Connecticut."

"And then I looked to the west," said Hurley during a July 29 phone interview. "And I thought, wouldn't it be amazing to walk the entire way from east to west?"

Hurley started his voyage in Provincetown, which is where the book begins – along with the realization that this would be no stroll in the park. The first few hundred of his ten million steps were already causing his feet pain.

In just the fourth paragraph of the book, Hurley admits, "Sore legs and the fear of failure would be my constant companions on the journey, one telling me to stop and the other urging me forward."

During Hurley's author's talk, he will describe what it was like to move alone through the country, town by town, mile by mile, day by day, and answer all those questions that, once you take a look at the book, you will find yourself asking, like, was he ever afraid for his life along the way, or worried that he might not finish the journey?

"There was a snow storm in Nevada, and it was one of the few times on the trip that I didn't know if I was going to survive," said Hurley. "I was a walking snowman. And for a 150-mile stretch, there were no cars, no town."

Once the snow let up a bit and people started to move about, Hurley said every single car that passed him stopped to make sure he was all right, which is consistent with Hurley's report that, all across the country, he encountered such friendliness and hospitality that he never thought he would find when he took his first steps.

"It certainly gave me a different sense of the people of America, especially in the Midwest," said Hurley, describing his most significant discovery along the way. "They're much more likely to come up to you and talk to you."

Hurley said people are prone to ask him more about his personal journey walking Route 6 across the country than they are to ask about the places he saw and the people he encountered, which surprises him somewhat.

"It's a people and places book in my mind," said Hurley. During the book design process, Hurley said he had a different idea for the front cover of the book, which is a photo of Hurley walking, of course, with a long, stretch of hilly highway behind him.

"I wanted the cover to be something else," he said. But his publisher said no. The photo Hurley wanted on the front cover became the back cover of the book, the majestic landscape of the White Mountains above Owens Valley in eastern California.

"They said, 'The book is about you walking across the country,'" said Hurley. "But I think it's more about the people and places. It's strange that people don't ask me more about the places and the people I talked to."

The people of Mattapoisett left a lasting impression on Hurley, saying on page 17 of the book that it was the people that made his stop at the diner formerly known as "The Nest" most memorable. He describes in the book how one Mattapoisett resident helped find Hurley a hotel room for free because he had no place to stay that night.

"Apparently that's the way things are in Mattapoisett," Hurley writes.

If you attend the author's talk on August 13, don't expect the standard slideshow and prepared talk that Hurley gives to everyone at each stop along his book tour.

"When I started out it was a slide show... and that was okay, but it's kind of restrictive," said Hurley. He now passes out a copy of the book to each person in attendance so they can have the book in their own hands, free to follow along and flip through the book. "So, instead of slides," said Hurley, "We go for a journey together through the book."

The August 13 event begins at 6:30 pm and Hurley will have copies of his book available for sale. Preregister for the event with the library so that there will be enough books for the event and to purchase. Contact the Mattapoisett Free Library at 508-758-4171 and, for more information about Hurley's book, visit www.route6walk.com.

them to take a look around and use their investigative abilities to try to spot anything funny that might be going on around them.

Slowly and carefully, the children looked around the room, spotting some items that perhaps did not belong in a library. There was a lacrosse stick lying on top of the piano and a soccer ball randomly placed on the closet door. But you had to look up in order not to miss the most conspicuous of items that do not belong, like a yellow shirt draped across the overhead lighting fixture, along with a windshield ice scraper. It was easy to miss the baseball cap placed atop the projector affixed to the ceiling, but between all of the kid detectives, all items were accounted for.

"That shows observation powers that are required to investigate a crime scene," said Rob, congratulating the little detectives for their keen eyes.

The group split in two, one bunch exploring the science of fingerprint identification with Chief Magee, while the others went with Rob to learn about comparing dental impressions.

The chief took full sets of fingerprints of each child, all of them delighting in the experience and comparing each other's fingerprints to see the differences in the lines and swirls.

Rob helped his group fashion small Styrofoam plates into a means of taking impressions of their teeth to compare.

This was Rob's presentation, but Chief Magee said Rob asked him to informally assist him in the demonstrations.

When asked if Rob would follow his father's footsteps into the law enforcement field, Chief Magee said, thankfully, no, and the chief is relieved that Rob was going to pharmacy school.

This was just one of the many fun children's activities the library has planned for the summer. Visit www.mattapoissettlibrary.org for more information about future events.

AmeriCorps: Giving Volunteers Direction By Renae Reints

Katie Ryer, 20, has been settling into life in Marion after returning home from ten months of volunteering with AmeriCorps. From October 24, 2013 to July 25, 2014, Ryer worked with a team of other volunteers on four different charity projects throughout California and Oregon.

How did such an adventure begin? A simple statement: "Mom, Dad, I don't want to go back to school."

After graduating from Old Rochester Regional High School in 2012, Ryer went to the University of New England in Biddeford, Maine, just twenty minutes south of Portland. "I was a bio major when I first started school, and I'm sitting in class going 'I don't really want to be here,'" Ryer recalled. She confessed this to her parents over winter break, and began searching for other options.

"I was really lucky because they were really supportive of it," said Ryer. Her father was the one who suggested taking a year off for AmeriCorps; Ryer applied and was accepted.

Of AmeriCorps' three volunteering programs, Ryer chose the National Civilian Community Corps (NCCC). This program allows volunteers ages 18 to 24 to travel to four different projects within their region over the ten-month term. AmeriCorps divides the country into five regions; Ryer chose the Pacific region, putting her at the Sacramento, California campus.

With the plans made, it was time to pack. "They pretty much cover everything," said Ryer, explaining how AmeriCorps pays for the plane ticket, food, uniforms, safety equipment, and a sleeping bag. She simply had to pack her own daywear.

Finally, it was time to fly out to the west coast. Unfortunately, the initial start date of October 9, 2013 was pushed off to the 24th due to the government shutdown. This left about half the time for initial training on the Sacramento campus. Still, roughly three hundred volunteers were trained, going through disaster relief training, specialty role training, CPR certification, and a fair amount of lectures.

The volunteers were broken into four units – silver, blue, gold, and green – and these units were broken into seven or eight teams composed of up to twelve volunteers. The teams each work on unique projects throughout the ten months. Ryer was one of six members on the Silver 1 team.

On November 13, 2013, the first round of projects began. For this first "spike," as they call it, the Silver 1 team headed to Los Angeles.

"We were in south central LA and we were tutoring inner city, at risk, foster care children," said Ryer. The Silver 1 team was spread across two high schools, one elementary school, and an office working on a holiday festival.

Ryer worked at Crenshaw High School, prepping a classroom during the day and tutoring kids in the afternoon. Helping them with their homework, Ryer laughed about her own struggles to recall old high school lessons. Still, she was always able to help when needed, and it wasn't all work and no play.

"If they had all their homework done, they could play Monopoly or Connect Four – it's like a reward to get their homework done – so we would have giant Monopoly games," recalled Ryer with a smile on her face, "They'd get so into it."

Along with tutoring, the holiday festival took up much of Silver 1's time. "There were two girls in the main office and they were working on the holiday festival, which they ended up running because our sponsor quit half-way through the round," said Ryer.

This left Silver 1 in charge of a festival for 3,000 impoverished children. Each child was to receive six presents and a free meal. "We wrapped so many presents," Ryer said, admitting that she can wrap just about anything now that she's had so much experience.

On the day of the festival, Silver 1 was handing out presents from 2:00 to 6:00 pm, but people continued to show up later. Not wanting to leave anyone out, the team continued to work.

"We were still giving out gifts for an hour afterwards. It was awesome," said Ryer, recalling the memory fondly. "We had a teammate, Mac, who was just grabbing stuff out of the truck and just tossing it to people."

kids, the first spike came to an end. Silver 1 returned to the Sacramento campus for winter break on December 20, 2013. Ryer spent some of her break with family in California, while some of her teammates flew home. She also spent some time on campus with other volunteers.

"I am grateful that I stayed out there because when I was on campus I got to bond with people who I would not have bonded with," said Ryer.

As the new year began, AmeriCorps returned to work. All units were on campus for a transition period and further training before the second spike.

This training included specialty role meetings. Ryer's specialty roles were "peer helper" and "VST" (vehicles, safety, tools). As a peer helper, Ryer would meet with other volunteers and counselors to talk about their experiences and do activities they could bring to their teams to bond. With VST, Ryer attended quick meetings with other volunteers to talk about the logistical side of their experiences.

When January 15, 2014 came around, it was time for the second spike, and Silver 1 headed to Oregon.

"We were in Newport, Oregon, which is a beautiful place on the coast," said Ryer, "We were working with Oregon Parks and Recreation Department, and we were staying in their campground, but we were working at Beaver Creek State Park."

Here the Silver 1 team worked hard, removing invasive blackberries, planting trees, and clearing trails. They even had to take an amphibian survey, which required walking through the marshes searching for salamander and frog eggs. Ryer recalls this being a difficult task, especially in the cold of Oregon's rainy winter. While she was lucky enough to remain dry, a couple of her teammates fell into the marshes. Calls of "Man down!" jokingly passed over their radios.

While Ryer said Newport was beautiful, she also advises visiting the town in any season other than winter. Here in New England, winter brings snow, but in Oregon, they get days of rain. Ryer and her other New England teammates laughed about how the town basically shut down over a couple of snow flurries. During one of these flurries, Silver 1 was asked to shovel out the campground, but they actually didn't own snow shovels. "So they gave us sand shovels," laughed Ryer.

As their project in Oregon came to an end in late March, Silver 1 headed to their third spike back in California. They lived in Mendocino while working for Habitat for Humanity in Fort Bragg.

"We built a duplex house," said Ryer, "so that was really cool."

The team worked alongside the fathers of the families who would be living in the duplex. Since they didn't speak English very well, Silver 1 was lucky that one of their team members was fluent in Spanish. Under the advisement of these two men, a site supervisor, and a retired carpenter volunteer, Silver 1 was able to make great progress on the duplex.

"It was just the cement that was there, and then when we left we had 60% of the siding done, the roof was done, the electrical had been started and there were holes drilled, one staircase was done, we had all the windows in, doors were getting put in," said Ryer. "It was a lot of do it, stop, take it down, redo it. So, a lot of learn-as-you-go kind of thing."

For the fourth and final spike of AmeriCorps, Silver 1 headed back to Oregon.

"We were in Grants Pass, Oregon, which is right on the border of California and Oregon," said Ryer, "We were working with the Josephine County Food Bank, and we were working on Raptor Creek Farm, which grows

FRONTLINE FAILURE

I have been using Frontline for fleas just as my vet advised but it isn't working. I have been bathing Homer with a flea shampoo and then putting on the Frontline. The stuff is bogus.

Unfortunately you are working too hard. Frontline and Advantage are applied to the skin on the back of the neck once a month. They spread over the surface of the pet through the natural oils on the skin. When you bathe your pet you wash away the oils that are necessary for the Frontline to spread out and do its job. So, do not bathe Homer for a few days before or after applying the flea killing Frontline.

I've noticed that Frontline doesn't work for a whole month on my cat. What's the deal?

Cats tend to groom more than dogs and may wash away a large part of the Frontline. There is usually enough activity to kill fleas for the entire month but ticks are heartier and may require reapplication every 3 weeks. So, if you are starting to see a bunch of ticks on your pet and it has been a few weeks since using Frontline, go ahead and reapply it.

vegetables for the food bank."

During their time on the farm, Silver 1 planted seeds, weeded gardens, and harvested food. They beautified the gardens, putting up signs, making a trail, and building another shade house by the CareSource garden for the disabled and elderly.

By the time their volunteer work was finished, Silver 1 had harvested 1,300 pounds of squash, zucchini, and tomatoes for the food bank. "When we showed up it was just dirt, flat dirt," said Ryer, proud of the turnout from her and her teammates' work. "They were amazed."

With a successful completion of their final project, Silver 1 returned to the Sacramento campus for out-processing with all the other units. They returned gear and said their goodbyes. AmeriCorps was wrapped up with an awards banquet, followed by AmeriProm, but "I didn't go to that; I watched Finding Nemo with my friend instead," laughed Ryer. She enjoyed her last few days with her new friends before returning home.

On July 25, Ryer arrived home in Marion at 2:30 am. Overtired, jet-lagged, and yet full of energy, she was happy to be home. Since then she's been reuniting with friends, visiting family, and getting used to not being on a strict schedule. While she readjusts, Ryer's experiences with AmeriCorps stay with her.

"I definitely want to keep volunteering," she said, "It's a lot of fun to do. You meet so many interesting people when you volunteer ... I want to broaden my connections that I have."

As she prepares to return to the University of New England in the fall, Ryer keeps the values AmeriCorps taught her. "It definitely made me realize that I need to focus more," she said.

With a new major in psychology, Ryer is looking forward to a second year at college. "I got into psychology because I realized I'm good at talking to people and helping them through their problems," she said, citing experiences at AmeriCorps. With a profession in the psychology field, Ryer hopes to give people who are struggling something to look forward to, if only to get them through the day.

After getting a bachelor's degree in psychology, Ryer plans on going into the Peace Corps, then pursuing a master's degree. That's her plan at the moment, but she admits it's open to flexibility. Ryer said society pressures people – "You have to go to college; you have to get an education; you have to get a good job; you have to get a family." – but she encourages others to see beyond that stoic plan.

"You have to live your life the way you want to live it and make yourself happy," she said, "It sounds selfish, but you can't take care of other people and not take care of yourself."

After the guidance her AmeriCorps experiences provided her, Ryer has a clearer, positive outlook on the future.

School Daze

This Mattapoisett Life

By Marilou Newell

With the arrival of 'Back To School' marketing in the mail and on the television, my mind wanders back to a time when thinking about going to school created happy excitement in my little girl brain. The most memorable had to be entering first grade.

In September 1958, I left home for good, so to speak – I started First Grade at Sippican Elementary School. I don't remember my teacher's name, but I vividly remember it as a lovely day resplendent with sunshine and my young Mother holding my hand tightly. She delivered me to the classroom door where she imparted some words to me that made her face look very earnest and a little scared. The words I can't recall, only her face frozen in time. In the next frame of memory, I'm seated at a desk that fits me just right holding a fat pencil and excited about the box of fat crayons waiting inside the desk. No more just a little kid following my mother from room to room, I was now a student.

Returning home that afternoon, I found Ma was upset with me. Why, I wondered. I hadn't been home long enough to get into trouble. What I had failed to do was cry. Other little kids had cried, begging their mothers not to leave them. I had simply and joyfully smiled and waved good-bye. Ma apparently was expecting confirmation of my neediness for her. What she failed to appreciate was that her job had been to prepare me for independent living. Poor Ma would continue to lament decades later, "...you were glad to get away from me, you didn't cry when I left..."

Having turned seven years old the previous January, I was one of the older students in the class but certainly not the smartest. At home, I'd received the most rudimentary thread of education. I knew the alphabet, how to count to fifty, and could spell my name out loud. Writing it would have to be mastered quickly because others already knew how to do this and so much more.

In those years, little girls still rarely wore trousers or slacks. Skirts and dresses dominated the scene as acceptable female attire. I preferred dresses with big fluffy bows in the back that bounced along as I skipped. Unfortunately, those bows were a menace that made sitting difficult. I sat in my first classroom chair very upright and very quiet. Those were also the days when children didn't speak in class unless called upon, where corporal punishment was anticipated for the smallest infraction of silly rules, and where little girls lined up first in front of little boys.

One thing Ma did teach me was how to sit properly while wearing a dress. It was important to smooth the backside with your hand as you bent into a seated position. Over and over we had practiced at home. She impressed upon me the importance of making sure that my 'panties' weren't seen by little boys. Pressing ones knees tightly together and never crossing ones legs was the rule. I found this difficult when my feet usually didn't touch the floor when seated.

Politics were deeply entrenched in classrooms across America. These were the days of atomic threat. Remember 'duck and cover' procedures? How those survival skills were drummed into our little heads. At least once a month the siren would blast through the building and all the children were instructed to scramble onto the floor, crawl on hands and knees getting under the desk. I, however, was much more concerned that little Tommy might see my panties as I skedaddled for cover. There I was with my right hand straining behind my backside to keep my dress from riding up. I feared exposing innocent eyes to my pink undies. Were we traumatized by all this talk of a bombs falling on our school? I don't know. I was primarily concerned about my underwear being seen and for that I am forever scarred.

I loved lunchtime. Most of the time, I brought a 'cold' lunch from home in a cherished Dale Evans lunchbox. Oh, that smell when the lid was popped open and the scent of a peanut butter and jelly sandwich on Wonder Bread (wrapped in waxed paper) along side a shiny apple wafted towards my olfactory senses (I learned that in fifth grade science) – ambrosia!

Smells punctuate my memories, including those from the first grade. Clay, paste, crayons, chalk, floor wax, mimeographed papers – this is the pungent past that floats in the air as I write. Oh, and the smell of sick ... some little kid was always throwing up. Yuck.

My first first grade teacher is memorable only as a vague image of an unsmiling woman with a passion for rote learning techniques. We recited lessons like good little parrots or else.

Midway through the school year, we moved back to Onset (fluctuating between Marion and Onset denoted various phases in my parent's marriage). At Onset Elementary School, I was installed with Mrs. Pie. Her very name evoked a pastry shop of goodness. And she was true to her name. Mrs. Pie was lovely in her crisp dresses and professionally coifed hair-do. Tall with gentle eyes and soft demeanor, I could listen to her voice all day and never tire of it as some kids did. One little girl I met in class would become my lifelong friend. We both recall Mrs. Pie like a fresh slice of sweetness served to us during first grade classes.

I was curious what other people remembered from this pivotal jumping off point in one's life. No matter how old the respondent, nearly everyone had something they could recall about first grade.

Ana told me that she came from a Portuguese-speaking home and that up until the age of four she didn't speak at all. She was completely dependent on her mother for everything so that entering an English-speaking first grade class was horrible. Speaking only Portuguese (at a time when bi-lingual education was not offered), she was unable to communicate with the teacher or the other students. She begged her mother not to make her go to school. Everything about the experience of being sent to school was difficult, including having to wear homemade clothing. Yet she survived and by second grade had made friends and was plugging away at English, a language that still feels new to her all these years later.

Bev came from a home where educated females were not an anomaly. She was given freedom and access to paper and writing implements, but more importantly, access to information. At home with a mother and grandmother who were both teachers, she received the equivalent of a full board-certified education. Thus, she recalls she was in the eighth grade before a teacher said something that she didn't already know. Amazing.

Krissie's experience was one from a Dickens novel. She said and I quote, "My teachers ... honestly should not have been allowed near children. I went to Lutheran grade school, and I SWEAR that several of those witches were concentration camp matrons, left overs from WWII." (LMAO)

Charlotte shared, "Mrs. Phinney was not warm and fuzzy but all right. One day, we had to think of words beginning with the letter 'H' and I asked her if we took the 'C' off my name would that be a word and she told me NO!" Charlotte would have to wait years to learn why the teacher reacted that strongly.

Anne (she was in Mrs. Pie's class the year before

Emily clearly recalls her first grade teacher, Miss Studee, as 'the year of the wedding planner.' Studee debriefed the students frequently about her upcoming nuptials with everything from the colors she had selected to the type of cake to the honeymoon venue. Emily was enthralled. When they celebrated the end of the school year, Emily's class had a pretend wedding reception with the girls wearing tiny wedding veils and the boys donning faux cummerbunds. For Emily, it was a dream come true. Her favorite toys were her Barbie dolls. She regularly married them off to the Kens in her collection.

Sarah said her strongest memory was witnessing a kid's throwing-up episode that then caused her to reflexively do the same. The teacher was kind and calming as she walked the children to the nurse's office. I think teachers must have a high level of tolerance for the smell and sight of bodily fluids. (Sarah is planning a career in psychiatry).

Danielle (Sarah's older sister) shared that she remembers hatching eggs to chicks and how interesting it was to watch the process. (She is heading to URI to study chemistry, then matriculating into other studies with the ultimate goal of becoming a dermatologist).

And last, but not least, from the one male who responded to my dragnet, Paul said that all he remembers other than being surrounded by Nuns (with an equal number falling between the good and evil varieties) was peeing his pants and his older brother being conscripted to take him home posthaste.

For me, first grade was the beginning of seeking, questioning, learning. Today I find myself feeling just as optimistic and excited about the future as I did in 1958. I believe that the best days are waiting to be experienced, yet – I do wish I could feel Ma's hand tightly holding mine just one more time. I cry now that she's left.

Mattapoisett Boy Honors Milton Silveira

By Jean Perry

There is going to be a very special dedication on Ned's Point on Friday, August 8 to unveil a bronze plaque and a sitting bench in honor of Mattapoisett's late Milton Silveira – a project in the making by one of Silveira's young friends and fans, Alex Craig, a sixth-grader at Old Hammondtown Elementary School.

Alex's mother, Julie Craig, said Alex has been busy collecting donations and consulting with Silveira's family for months, and he is excited to present the bronze plaque before the people of Mattapoisett and to Silveira's surviving relatives.

When in the third grade, Alex chose to represent Silveira in a presentation about famous people from Massachusetts. Alex reached out to Silveira, who was in his nineties when the correspondence between the two began, to learn more about the local National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) chief engineer.

"They struck up a friendship," said Ms. Craig. "And after Milton died last year, Alex wanted to do something for him." And because Milton loved Ned's Point, Craig said, it was decided that a bronze plaque honoring Silveira should be placed at the site beside the sea, along with a bench dedicated to Silveira.

Alex said he never got to meet Silveira in person, but their phone conversations made a lasting impression on the boy.

"I think he was a really great man and that's why I've been doing this whole project," said Alex. He said Silveira's sister helped design the plaque. "It's a pretty big plaque ... and it's just a great little biography about him and it has a little picture of a shuttle on it," said Alex. During the dedication ceremony on Friday, Alex said he is going to tell the Town about who Silveira was and why they should remember him.

"It was so nice to hear Alex and Milton have these conversations over the phone," said Craig. She added that it was a great experience for Alex, and she is pleased that Alex has chosen to pursue this gesture of respect toward Silveira.

Silveira oversaw the development of the Little Joe II, an unmanned space launch vehicle. He also contributed to other programs, including the Apollo mission.

"We just think Mattapoisett should know about [Milton]," said Craig.

Silveira was born in Mattapoisett in 1929 and graduated from Fairhaven High School. He died July 11, 2013 after 36 years of service for NASA.

"I'm very proud of Alex," said Craig. "And it's really unbelievable how much support the community has given."

The dedication ceremony on Friday, August 8 at Ned's Point is scheduled for 11:00 am. Alex, his family, Silveira's family, town officials, and members of the

Quaker Week Raising Funds for Restoration

By Jean Perry

The Mattapoisett Friends Meeting House fundraising efforts for the restoration of the antique building are underway and, although it got off to a wet start this week, the yard sale planned for August 2 went ahead anyway despite the rainy weather.

"We had known it was going to rain," said Deena Kinsky, a member of the Mattapoisett Friends Meeting House, so she said they knew they would need to have the yard sale indoors, even utilizing the old carriage shed on the property where, many years ago, people would store their horse drawn carriages.

"A lot of people came out," said Kinsky, despite the rain. "We don't know if we would have had more people or if it was just a great activity for a rainy day."

According to Kinsky, the cost of the first phase of the renovation is estimated at about $75,000, and the entire project is estimated at about $245,000. The yard sale raised about $600, and a few of the items donated, said Kinsky, have been placed on eBay to see if they will sell for a higher price.

The friends also hosted a donation-only family meat pie supper with a silent auction on Sunday, August 3.

donations of items to sell as well as money, and Kinsky says the friends are also seeking grant funding to help with the restoration costs.

There are other events planned for the remainder of the Mattapoisett Friends Meeting House "Quaker Week." On Saturday, August 9, the friends will be at the meetinghouse for another donation day, collecting more items for another yard sale to be held in October.

For Sunday, August 10, the friends invite members of the community to an abbreviated half-hour silent worship at 9:30 am, followed by an informational lecture about the history of Quakerism. Later that evening, two visiting Quakers from Cuba will speak about the growing Quaker movement within their country at 7:00 pm.

As for the renovations, slated to being either late August or early September, Phase I of the project is to repair the rotted first floor framing, which Kinsky said needs to be totally replaced. She said Meeting House member Brad Hathaway has spearheaded the project because the building, built in 1827, has high sentimental value for the Mattapoisett Quakers.

"We love our meeting house," said Kinsky. "It's like a spiritual home and it's important to us. We feel like we're stewards of this building after the people who came before us. It has so much historical value. It's got a lot of rich heritage and we want to fix it up."

Vandals and Thieves on the Loose

Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen

By Marilou Newell

Mattapoisett citizens need to be on the alert. Vandals are destroying property and thieves are stealing from the community. During the August 5 Board of Selectmen meeting, Town Administrator Mike Gagne asked the residents of the community to report any suspicious activity after a series of thefts and an occurrence of vandalism have taken place this summer.

Gagne reported that headstones had been pushed over and damaged at Cushing Cemetery during the daylight on August 5, there was a theft in June from the beach house (two cast iron sinks and parts of equipment for a new swing set), and a 10-foot section of copper downpipe was stolen from the exterior of Center School

He said it was hard to believe that these things could have happened in the very heart of the village, which is heavily populated, and he hopes that in the future people will call the police if they have any suspicions of illegal activity taking place. Gagne said, "We need the eyes and ears of the community."

Gagne also reported on a recently-completed survey on voter preference about poll opening hours during local annual elections. He said that of the approximately 60 responses received, 92 percent wanted the polls to open earlier at 8:00 am versus 10:00 am. The selectmen agreed with the voters' requests.

How does chiropractic care help seniors?

Researchers for Topics in Clinical Chiropractic found that for seniors age 75 and over, "Chiropractic users were less likely to have been hospitalized, less likely to have used a nursing home, more likely to report a better health status, more likely to exercise vigorously, and more likely to be mobile in the community. In addition, they were less likely to use prescription drugs."

Further supporting this improvement in quality of life, a study published in the Journal of Manipulative and Physiological Therapeutics found that Medicare patients who had regular chiropractic care "reported making only half the annual number of visits to medical providers compared with the national average for people age 65 years and over."

Often seniors are told that their pain is due to arthritis or aging, and that there isn't much that can be done. Often, chiropractic care can help.

Department's summer camp program has been an overwhelming success this season with 270 children participating.

In other business, the selectmen reviewed and approved the conservation restriction recently accepted by the Conservation Commission for the Shaw Farm property off Brandt Island Road. This land acquisition, which is partially situated in Fairhaven, will eventually have public bike and walking access connecting the Mattapoisett Bike Path with the Nasketucket Reservation.

Selectmen voted to reappoint Paul Amoruso to the Finance Committee. They also gave a confirming vote on year-end inter-budget line item transfer with $5,000 moving from waterfront enterprise wages column to waterfront enterprise improvement expenses and $130,000 moved and dispersed to a long list of needs.

Several upcoming events received approval. The 10th Anniversary of the Mattapoisett Skate Park will be held on August 23, with a rain date of August 30. The event will feature live music and food geared towards a family-friendly celebration. Event organizer Kyle Lopes will meet with the Board of Health and Chief Mary Lyons to finalize permits and details.

Mattapoisett Congregational Church will hold their annual "Homecoming Sunday" on September 7 at Ned's Point from 7:00 am to 1:00 pm.

Sewer Regulations Updated

Marion Board of Selectmen

By Paul Lopes

The Marion Selectmen wrapped up two years of work on the Town's wastewater management at the August 5 meeting. In their capacity as Water and Sewer Commissioners, the Board met with Department of Public Works Superintendent Rob Zora, Wastewater Treatment Plant Superintendent Frank Cooper, and Shawn Syde of CDM Smith with regard to the sewer regulation.

CDM Smith was hired to review and recommend changes to the Sewer Ordinance, which every town is required to have, and Marion's was last updated in April 2002. Syde explained that some of the added items included requirements that are now more in line with Environmental Protection Agency guidelines, such as provisions for storm water systems. Other provisions help regulate food handling facilities and the disposal of fats, oils, and greases, as well as an updated fee schedule.

"These changes should bring the Town's sewer user ordinances up to current standards," said Syde.

"This is important because everything that goes down the drain isn't something we are prepared to treat. We want to explain this to anyone who cares to listen," said Chairman Jon Henry. "That's why we do this, folks."

When asked if there was a deadline for adopting the new regulations, Zora said, "We've been working on these changes for almost two years and we'd like to see them adopted soon."

Henry stated he would like a public input period prior to adoption. Town Administrator Paul Dawson told the selectmen that this item has been on the agenda at a few meetings and he has never had any questions brought to him.

The overall consensus was that there was always the flexibility to allow waivers, should they be needed, or modify the regulations with future votes. Henry agreed and at that point, the board voted to adopt the new regulations.

In other matters, while reviewing the Roadway Improvement Project, Dawson reported that they have discovered a number of residences that are tied into the storm water drainage system of which the Town was unaware, resulting in increased construction costs.

Dawson said he is currently looking into "how we're going to deal with it, and how we're going to pay for it," as it is expected the cost will be around $3,500 per connection.

Also at the meeting, in an appointment with the Marion Pathways Committee, the board met with committee members Jeff Oakes, John Rockwell, and Kirk Coykendall. Prior to moving forward, the Pathways Committee needs to conduct public outreach and to document town-wide acceptance of the project by meeting with those who would be affected. They hope the selectmen would endorse the project, helping it move forward faster.

Selectman Jody Dickerson said that, as part of his job as recreation director, he walked the proposed area in Washburn Park affected by the pathway and feels the project would be beneficial.

The board voted to issue a letter of support for the program. Selectman Stephen Cushing noted that this is "a great project that has been needed for some time."

Oakes wanted to inform residents that the Pathways Committee is recruiting new members and forming a 'Friends of the Pathway' group, and those interested can get in contact through the Town's website.

Building Commissioner Scott Shippey reviewed two properties on Point Road that have derelict structures he feels are a hazard. He has attempted to locate heirs to the properties who are willing to take responsibility for them, as the owners are deceased, but was unable to locate anyone. He is seeking a temporary restraining order (TRO) that will allow inspectors to legally enter the property and advise of any safety concerns. The board approved the TRO.

In other business, the board awarded the contract for the River Road, Point Road, Spring Street, and Pleasant Street projects to Lawrence Lynch Corp., who was the lowest bidder at $436,481. Dawson wanted to point out that this cost was well below the estimate for this phase of the project.

Selectmen approved a food service Common Victualler license for Kate's Simple Eats at 148 Front Street, contingent upon receiving the proper Board of Health permits.

Henry requested that a letter of thanks be sent to Conservation Commission member Wendy Carreau who will not be seeking reappointment.

The Board signed the paperwork for the State Primary Election, which will be held on September 9 from 7:00 am to 8:00 pm at the VFW, Mill Street (Route 6), and approved a one-day liquor license for the VFW Annual Clambake on August 10.

Plan to Restore Illegal Logging Approved

Rochester Conservation Commission

By Jean Perry

Trees cut down and brush cleared without a permit will have to be replanted at 510 New Bedford Road, according to a restoration plan the Rochester Conservation Commission approved on August 5.

Carmelo Nicolosi, standing in for Rick Charon of Charon Associates, the representative for property owners Christopher Faustino Jr. and Britney Ashley, presented the plan to replant six trees that were illegally cut down inside an 800 square-foot area, along with 24 shrubs that were cleared. The tree cutting and brush clearing work was within the 100-foot buffer zone, and some of the work took place within the 25-foot no-touch zone.

There was a tense moment between Christopher Faustino Sr. and abutter at 508 New Bedford Road, Robin

Brown, and her attorney, Thomas Mason, after Mason argued that the illegal work Faustino Sr. performed, as far as Mason could see with his own eyes, was a "pretty significant disturbance."

Faustino Sr. confronted the two about how they were able to view the illegal clearing that Faustino Sr. himself performed, without trespassing on his son's property.

Faustino Sr. used to sit on the Rochester Conservation Commission.

"How did you see it?" Faustino loudly asked Mason, standing over Mason and Brown at the meeting. Mason stated that he could see the small area where Faustino performed some of the clearing on Brown's property, to which Faustino Sr. denied. He said that none of the work happened on Brown's property, although back on July 1, Charon confirmed that some of the clearing did in fact occur on Brown's property.

After the August 5 meeting, Conservation Agent Laurell Farinon also confirmed that a small area, roughly six feet beyond Faustino's property line to the west, was affected.

The exchange between Faustino Sr., Brown, and Mason continued on for some time until at one point Conservation Commission member John Teal attempted to put a stop to it.

"Everybody thinks it's fine except a few neighbors," Faustino Sr. continued on. Brown insisted Faustino still broke the law.

The commission accepted the restoration plan as presented, following Farinon's recommendation. The Natural Heritage & Endangered Species Program (NHESP) sent a letter finding no negative impact on any rare or endangered flora, and Farinon recommended that the herbaceous layer as well as the brush within the 25-foot no-touch zone be allowed to grow back on its own. The work was ordered to be completed by November 7, and the property owners' engineer is required to submit a progress report later in the spring of 2015.

The size of the trees to be replanted was not stipulated in the restoration plan, but several different species of trees were specified.

Farinon remarked that the plan was appropriate and, so far, since the clearing took place earlier in the growing season, "everything looks like it's doing really well." She said much of the cleared brush was already beginning to grow back.

"You get the right year and the stuff just comes up all over the place," said Teal, who advocated the laissez-faire approach to allowing the brush to return on its own. He also recommended that Faustino and Ashley choose smaller-sized trees rather than larger trees saying that planting larger trees would "create more of a disturbance."

In other matters, the commission approved the Notice of Intent for Kei Lau of 566 Snipatuit Road to construct a 4-foot by 12-foot dock and two 4-foot by 12-foot ramps, to repair an existing seaplane hangar and stairway, and to perform site work and tree removal.

Nicolosi, also representing Lau, said the plan has been updated to also reflect a replacement of an existing patio plus an additional patio, along with a screened porch. Most of the work is within the 100-foot buffer zone.

The NHESP, in a letter addressing Lau's property, also stated that no rare or endangered species would be affected by the proposed work.

Also during the meeting, the commission approved a Request for Emergency Certification for Culvert Replacement due to Collapse for Shamut Associates, LLC of 50 Cranberry Highway.

Russell Kleekamp, representing Shawmut Associates, said an existing culvert has failed and has left a deep impression in the roadway. The work to replace the 42-inch corrugated metal pipe will take place over the weekend and should be done within two days.

"Public Trust" Worth Protecting

Mattapoisett Marine Advisory Board

By Marilou Newell

Calling the precious waterfront and harbor areas of Mattapoisett a "public trust," members of the Marine Advisory Board voted to send a letter to the selectmen citing concerns that the waterfront management plan might be overlooked by the Conservation Commission. Member Robert Moore and others at the July 31 meeting felt it was important during certain ConCom hearings that those commission members have the management plan as a guide to aid them through their decision making processes, or have a member(s) of the MAB at the hearing as an advocate of that plan.

This is not a new concern, but one that was again brought to their attention since a resident of Goodspeed Island is in the planning stages of seeking a permit to build a 250-foot private dock into what is presently deemed 'recreational' waters in the waterfront management plan. This is an area that had previously been rejected for inclusion in the mooring grid to allow for public recreation.

Moore noted that in the absence of bylaws governing such building activities, the recreational area could and would be compromised and thus harm the 'public trust,' Mattapoisett's harbor and coastal waterways.

Conservation Commission's primary area of responsibility is the enforcement of the Wetlands Protection Act. From the town's website, "The Conservation Department and Conservation Commission are responsible for permitting and enforcement of the Massachusetts Wetlands Protection Act and the more protective Wetland Bylaw, Chapter 172. Under the Conservation Commission Act they are charged with the protection of a community's natural resources. They are involved with open space acquisition and the management of conservation lands... Under the Wetlands Protection Act there are eight interests that are protected: Protection of public and private water supply, Protection of ground water supply, Flood control, Storm damage prevention, Prevention of pollution, Moore said, "We need bylaws, rules and regulations to prevent numerous new piers being built. Someone should start caring." Harbormaster Jill Simmons said that presently she had four or five new applications for private docks and other projecting piers.

At the end of this debated topic, the board moved to send a letter to the selectmen indicating the following: 1) a lack of and need to develop bylaws governing private piers, docks and wharves for presentation at the Fall Town meeting; 2) the need for the waterfront management plan to be reviewed by other town departments; and 3) consideration of a moratorium on private structures of this sort until bylaws can be written and accepted by the town.

Other subject matters discussed by the board included an update by Simmons on the repair and renovation work on the wharves, which she said that nearly everything on the list has been completed; and a letter from Jack Olson, 195 North Street, questioning the necessity to have a state-issued registration for his 12-foot skiff.

Simmons pointed out that the current town-issued rules and regulations require a state registration; however, the state doesn't require it. The board members acknowledged that such a requirement was removed for the updated rules and regulations that are pending town acceptance. Olson will be notified that a state-issued registration is not necessary, but a town-issued permit is required.

Regarding unused moorings, Simmons said that she continues to purge the mooring lists, removing those issued moorings that do not have any activity or installed equipment associated with them. Those on the mooring wait-list may now anticipate as little as a one-year wait time. Skiff spaces were also turning over more quickly, she added. However, spaces on the wharf for boats seem locked in for many years to come.

Pump out services provided free by the town were also discussed. Simmons said that the 'Clean Vessel Act' of 1994 provides grant monies to cover the costs associated with providing this service. She wants to see more boaters use the service and wants to get the word out to the public that the service is available. The harbor master's office can be reached by calling 508 758-4191 or via email at harbormaster@mattapoiset.net.

The next meeting of the Marine Advisory Board is August 28 at 7:00 pm in the town hall conference room. The public is encouraged to attend.

Guidebook at its August 4 meeting. Opinions got heated before the dialogue ended in a motion to terminate all discussion on the guidebook. With five in favor and only two against, the guidebook was rejected.

Throughout the discussion, two documents were compared: Marum's guidebook and a collection of resources from Massachusetts state and Marion town websites put together by former Planning Board member Ted North.

Chairman Stephen Kokkins began the discussion by saying state and federal laws already exist to govern the Planning Board, and these laws are for the board to follow, not interpret.

"They form the basis for the actions we take," the chairman said, mentioning a few of his own ad hoc guidelines – general statements on how the Planning Board is run.

Marum began her defense of her guidebook by reading its purpose, which is "to assist the integration of new members to the Marion Planning Board by providing them with direction on how to appropriately carry out their duties and how to better understand the complexities of community planning, its purposes, and its benefits."

Marum added that she hoped to help bring the board into the 21st century using her knowledge as a member of Southeastern Regional Planning Economic and Development District (SRPEDD); the guidebook, Marum said, is a simple step towards increasing efficiency and communication on the board.

"Nine years on the board and all of a sudden we're not in the 21st century?" said longstanding board member Steve Gonsalves. "I don't understand where this is coming from."

In defense of the guidebook, Vice-Chairman Norman Hills said he has not been able to find official job descriptions of the Planning Board clerk, chairman, and vice-chairman elsewhere. Kokkins countered that these have become "over the decades more or less self-evident."

"Both have a lot of validity and a lot of utility," said board member Michael Popitz, referencing Marum's guidebook and North's resources packet. Popitz added that he holds great respect for Marum and the work she put into the guidebook.

"I think that it's really key that we appreciate each other fully," he said, gently reminding the board to retain respect and teamwork throughout the discussion. Unfortunately, tensions only mounted as the discussion continued.

A few board members expressed concern that Marum's guidebook includes paraphrased laws and minor interpretations. Along with this, they don't see the need to adopt the guidebook as policy when there are already resources available.

"The board has always worked fine in my opinion," said Gonsalves, saying he simply learned as he went along after he joined the board. "There's always something to learn; there's always something to add," continued Gonsalves.

Board member Rico Ferrari felt Marum's guidebook could be useful as a library resource or posted online, but "it's not in our space."

After so much opposition, Hills again spoke in defense of the guidebook.

"I hear fear all around the table," said Hills. "I don't think it's misinterpreting anything... Is [the guidebook] necessary? Why not?"

Marum said when she was elected to the board, she asked about an orientation. She was told board members typically spend the first year of their three-year term mostly just listening to "absorb the material through osmosis." With her guidebook, Marum hoped board members would be "more effective and efficient from day one."

Other board members disagreed, with Ferrari stating it only took him three meetings to feel comfortable with the board after he was elected. As the discussion heightened, Ferrari stated that the debate was Hills and Marum against the board. "To me, that's the end of the story," he said.

After a few more comments, Planning Board Clerk Robert Lane made a motion to end the discussion on the guidebook.

"I request a roll-call vote," said Marum when the guidebook was rejected. No one was against having their name recorded with their vote.

Although the vote was already taken, the board took comments from the public. North took the stand to speak about his resources guide, which includes Internet links to laws, forms, and other sites of interest.

Lane then read a letter sent by former Planning Board Chairman Jay Ryder in which Ryder expressed a strong opinion in opposition to the proposed guidebook.

The meeting was wrapped up with old/new business points to be further discussed at the board's next meeting. There were no further items of discussion on the agenda.

After the meet's conclusion, Marum continued to defend her guidebook during a brief interview. "When you go for a job, you're always given an orientation, and you're presented a guidebook, and that's to bring you up to speed with the organization to make you feel welcome," she said. "This is what I was hoping to do with the board."

Marum continued to say that she attended a meeting at the College of the Holy Cross organized by the Massachusetts chapter of the American Planning Association. She said many of their concepts are included in the guidebook, but "in no way have I ever interpreted or put my own spin on any law."

When looking to the future of her guidebook, Marum said, "I think I'll see what happens next year. There may be some new members on the board and perhaps those members may be more receptive." Until then, Marum mentioned she might bring her guidebook to the library for town members to utilize.

Chairman Kokkins, on the other hand, supported the board's decision on the handbook. "I think there was a common thread that we thought it was unnecessary, because we all understand more than some people think about how the laws work and the practices we have to follow," he said. "I think it will come up again and maybe should ... come up again, but I thought that the list of actual resources that Mr. North offered was a little more useful and that it was complete."

Kokkins again expressed concern that Marum's guidebook was incomplete, unnecessary, and included some minor interpretations of the law "that we're not really empowered to do."

Still, Kokkins said the guidebook could be used as a source of information if any board members would like to regard it. "They're welcome to look at it; they're welcome to use it," he said, "It's just that we don't have enough time, space, and need, mostly, to actually go through and make sure that it's official policy of the board, because we think we have that well in hand."

The Marion Planning Board's next meeting will be on August 18 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Town House.

To the Editor:

There is talk in Marion about which group the Selectmen will appoint to handle the Sprague's Cove storm water basin. One of their options is to give control to the Conservation Commission, which is the group that had the previous storm water system removed in 2012.

The Selectmen may want to consider a far better alternative. The Open Space Commission has formed a subcommittee of storm water professionals to oversee the many storm water basins on their properties, and that subcommittee would be a great fit for Sprague's Cove.

This would free up the Conservation Commission to concentrate on their real job – protecting the wetlands in Marion. I think it is a win-win solution for all of us who have expressed concern.

Sincerely,

Elizabeth Leatham, Marion

Obituaries:

George E. Church, 90, of Rochester died Thursday July 31, 2014 at Sippican Health Care Center after a period of declining health. He was the husband of the late Katherine H. (Hartley) Church.

Born in Rochester, the son of the late George F. and Martha (Smith) Church, he lived in Rochester all of his life.

He was a member of the First Congregational Church of Rochester.

George was a self-taught mechanical genius who ran his father's saw mill and owned and operated a building moving service.

He was very philanthropic member of his community. He established a scholarship fund with the Community Foundation of Southeastern Massachusetts to provide scholarships to students in this area pursuing a nursing degree. He facilitated the purchase of hundreds of acres of land in Rochester through the Massachusetts Fish and Wildlife and the Rochester Land Trust to preserve open space. He was honored as the Standard-Times Man of the Year in Rochester in 2007.

He enjoyed steam driven automobiles, horse drawn wagons, and raising ponies.

During World War II, he served in the U.S. Army Air Corps and participated in the Battles of Normandy, Northern France, the Ardennes, the Rhineland, Central Europe, and the Air Offensive Europe. He was a member of Veterans of Foreign Wars Benjamin D. Cushing Post 2425.

He is survived by two nieces, Barbara Pasquarello and her husband James of Lakeville, and Janet Estes of Maine; two nephews, George Mercier of Westport and James Mercier of Taunton; his brother-in-law, Henry Hartley and his wife Bonnie of Rochester; his sister-in-law, Shirley Hartley of Rochester; and his close friend, Duffy Clapp of Rochester.

He was predeceased by his sister, Hazel Mercier and her husband Joseph, and his brothers-in-law Greenwood "Sonny" Hartley and Robert Hartley and his wife Rose.

His Funeral Service was held on Wednesday August 6, 2014 at the First Congregational Church of Rochester. Burial with military honors followed in Center Cemetery. Visiting hours were omitted. In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made to Community Foundation of Southeastern Massachusetts for the George Earl and Katherine Hartley Church Scholarship Fund, 63 Union St., New Bedford, MA 02740 or the Rochester Land Trust, P.O. MOVIE REVIEW

Star Crossed

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Guardians of the Galaxy. Starring Chris Pratt and Zoe Saldana. Directed by James Gunn. Running time: 122 minutes. MPAA rating: PG-13.

If you take a piece of white bread and stick weird things into it, what you have isn't anything bold or dazzling; it's just white bread with weird things stuck into it. Guardians of the Galaxy is that white bread: ornamentally eye-catching but fundamentally bland. The movie is set in the same universe as Iron Man and The Avengers and the other connected Marvel-comics films, but it's set somewhere in the cosmic margins, away from Earth, off to the side. It's a milieu we sort of have to agree to accept as alien, though many of its inhabitants pretty much look human, only with fresh coats of blue or green paint. It's not futuristic; it's happening in 2014, except that its main Earth character, Peter Quill (Chris Pratt), has been off-planet since 1988, so his references to terran culture end then.

Peter has an Awesome Mix Tape filled with his dear dead mom's favorite tunes, which tend towards classic rock from the '70s. The presence of this music in what's supposed to be a planet-hopping adventure occasionally lends it the aura of a midnight movie, albeit a midnight movie that cost $170 million. Guardians has been written (by director James Gunn and Nicole Perlman) with a good portion of snark, though none of the verbal barbs turn around and aim at the movie itself, or at Marvel (or Disney). It feels like a parody that isn't parodying anything; a movie that costs that kind of money can't be expected to have sharp teeth, and it doesn't. It's just smug, engaging in lightly inane badinage and lumbering into any number of cluttered action set-pieces. The jokiness commands you not to take the proceedings too seriously, as if you would anyway.

Peter, who calls himself Starlord, finds himself aligned with several other outlaws — assassin Gamora (Zoe Saldana), bruiser Drax (Dave Bautista), sentient walking tree Groot (voice of Vin Diesel), and talking raccoon Rocket (voice of Bradley Cooper) — against the usual dull villain who wants to destroy everything. This good-vs.-evil plot unfolds inside the usual meaninglessly convoluted web of allegiances, various people who don't like the Guardians, as well as tensions between the Kree and the Xandarians (ah, yes, that old conflict). Guardians would like us to find it hip and quirky, but at heart it's like every other obscenely expensive summer movie about heroes trying to stop bad guys from doing bad things. The bad guys want to do bad things for reasons we barely comprehend — they do bad things because they're bad guys, I take it. And they have to be stopped. This requires extremely pricey, poorly edited chase scenes, things blowing up, people shooting at or punching other people, and other greatest hits.

Gunn is clever, and I'm not immune to his nudging; I chuckled a few times (mostly at bits of business involving Groot or Rocket). But anyone expecting the perversities of Gunn's Troma-meets-Cronenberg horror-comedy Slither (2006) or his previous film, 2010's Super, had better keep waiting. I much prefer Super, which had the sting of human frailty, and which, perhaps not coincidentally, cost 68 times less than Guardians of the Galaxy. Gunn has already made his superhero movie; this new one doesn't really feel like his. It feels like a corporate jest, of the sort that Marvel used to indulge in briefly in the '80s, when they would launch stunts like Assistant Editors' Month — titles like Spider-Man or Daredevil would be turned over to less serious writers for tongue-in-cheek meta-stories that happened more or less out of continuity. Guardians is like a huge Assistant Editors' Month issue. But readers were expected to pay the full sixty cents for those issues back in 1984, and audiences are expected to pay full ticket prices for it now.

SHS Musical Matinees

This August, beat the mid-day heat with Sippican Historical Society's Musical Matinees. On Thursday, August 14, Gene Kelly, Debbie Reynolds and Donald O'Connor star in the 1952 musical, Singin' in the Rain. Set during the advent of "talkies," Don Lockwood (played by Gene Kelly) has risen to stardom during Hollywood's silent-movie era, and pairs with the stunning but simple-minded Lina Lamont (Jean Hagen). Things get complicated for the silent film production company and cast as they make a difficult transition to sound, adding new performers to the mix. Kelly wore three hats in the light-hearted film, as co-director, co-star and co-choreographer. Singin' in the Rain topped the American Film Institute's 100 Years of Musicals list, and is ranked as the fifth greatest American motion picture of all time in AFI's 2007 list of the greatest American films.

Musical Matinees (which will also include On the Town on Tuesday, August 19 and An American in Paris on Thursday, August 28) will be held in the Front Room of the Marion Music Hall and will begin at 11:00 am. The films are offered free to the public, with no registration required. Attendees are encouraged to bring a lunch and

RLT Plans Leonard's Pond Event

In keeping with this year's goal of visiting parcels in the Explore Rochester trail booklet – jointly published with the Conservation Commission's Open Space Committee – the RLT invites the public to join us on Leonard's Pond to explore its inlet and shoreline Thursday, August 7 at 5:30 pm.

The public is urged to bring canoes or kayaks to the new Town of Rochester launching area, just down the road from RLT's Herb Wood property. Members of RLT will have a few canoes and kayaks available for use if needed. What will follow will be a leisurely paddle about this pristine impoundment of the Sippican River. Early evening views of Eastover Farm, bird life settling in for the night, and a perfect time for fishing – with a valid MA license – will be the plan.

What a lovely outing for families or 9-5 workers to look forward to after a hot summer day. And remember, there is a picnic table just up the road at the Wood property and wild blueberries for the picking around the Town's launch site.

So join us, Thursday, August 7 at 5:30 pm to explore this little bit of paradise here in Rochester. And watch the Town's website in the fall as Explore Rochester adds new parcels to walk and updates the first 12 with changes in information to its online guide.

Rochester Grange Agricultural Fair

The 104th Annual Grange Agricultural Fair will be held Saturday, August 16 from 1:30 - 7:00 pm. A Ham & Bean Supper will be held at 6:00 pm followed by an auction of produce, etc. from the fair. Our Fair books and posters have been out for a while, disappearing almost as fast as they were dropped off. The Fair committee hopes that it's a good sign and that gardeners and crafters are preparing to enter and show off what they have grown this summer or have made during the past year.

To enter, bring your entries to the Grange Hall at 205 Hartley Rd. on Friday, August 15 between 2:00 and 4:00 pm or in the evening between 7:00 and 8:30 pm. All rules are in the green Fair Book. If you can't find one or have a question, please call Sue at 508-295-8908 or email sash48@comcast.net. The Fair is open to ALL AGES. Bring your entries and get your friends to bring theirs. Friendly competition is the key and is always fun.

The Grange looks forward to once again spot lighting our local agriculture and handcrafts and as always, seeing our many old friends and we hope, many new ones as well. And yes, the Country Fair is down the road, so stop by the Grange on your way to Pine St. Remember, the Fair is free and opens at 1:30 pm.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Technology snafus tax your patience. But before you throw that computer or other bulky hardware into the trash, take a deep breath and call someone knowledgeable for help.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Don't be too upset if your generosity goes unappreciated. These things happen, and rather than brood over it, move on. A new friend could open up some exciting new possibilities.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A loved one helps you get through an especially difficult emotional situation. Spend the weekend immersed in the body and soul restorative powers of music and the other arts.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You are pretty much in charge of what you want to do this week. However, it might be a good idea to keep an open mind regarding suggestions from people you know you can trust.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Another chance to shine (something always dear to the Lion's heart) might be resented by others. But you earned it, so enjoy it. The weekend brings news about a family member.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A suggestion that never took off could become viable again. Dust it off, update it if necessary, and resubmit it. In your personal life, a new relationship takes an "interesting" turn.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Confronting a new challenge to your stated position could work to your advantage by settling all doubts once you're able to present a solid defense backed up by equally solid facts.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You enjoy doing nice things for others. But this is a good time to do something nice for yourself as well. You might want to start by planning a super-special getaway weekend.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Some changes you feel you need to make might be reasonable and appropriate. But others might lead to new problems. Think things through carefully before you act.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Good instincts usually keep the sure-footed Goat on the right path. So, what others might see as stubbornness on your part, in fact reflects your good sense of what is worth supporting.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) A period of introspection could lead to some surprising conclusions -- and also equally surprising changes -- involving a number of your long-held positions on several issues.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) The financially practical Pisces might want to take a sensible approach to spending as well as investing. Being prudent now pays off later. A romantic situation moves into another phase.

BORN THIS WEEK: Your sense of curiosity keeps you continually alert for what's new about people, places and things.

Learn to Quahog in Mattapoissett

Join the Buzzards Bay Coalition at Camp Massasoit – at the end of Reservation Road in Mattapoissett – on Saturday, August 9 from 11:00 am to 12:30 pm for a fun, free program to learn to dig your own quahogs from Buzzards Bay. Experts with the Coalition will teach you the basics of local quahogging: what you need, how to do it, and where to go. This will be a “dig and release” event, unless you have a current Mattapoissett shellfish permit.

This program is part of the Coalition’s Bay Adventures series, which are programs designed for explorers of all ages to get outside and discover Buzzards Bay. To learn more about all our upcoming Bay Adventures, visit www.savebuzzardsbay.org/BayAdventures.

Registration is required for all Bay Adventures. To RSVP, email bayadventures@savebuzzardsbay.org or call 508-999-6363 ext. 219.

Fifth Annual Brad Barrows Motorcycle Ride

The Fifth Annual Brad Barrows Youth Athletic Fund Motorcycle Ride will take place Saturday, September 20 at Rick’s Tavern in Mattapoissett.

The Brad Barrows Youth Athletic Fund is a non-profit organization which, through an annual motorcycle run, raises money to offset the cost for families of children who otherwise would not be able to afford local sports programs and activities in the Tri-Town area. In addition, the fund also donates to local charities and fundraisers.

Last year, the 2013 motorcycle run raised $2,000 with proceeds going to the following local organizations:
- Old Rochester Tri-Town Little League - $400
- ORR Youth Football - $400

3rd Annual Summer Soiree

It is that time of year again for the 3rd Annual Summer Soiree brought to you by the Friends of Old Rochester Swimming. The event will be held on August 19 from 5:00 - 8:00 pm at the Inn at Shipyard Park. There will be plenty of appetizers as well as a silent auction. Items for the silent auction include Patriots tickets, a sitting session with a well-known local photographer, driving hours from a local driving school and many other great items. Tickets are $25 each. Please email orrbulldogswimming@gmail.com for tickets or more information. Monies raised by this event go directly to support the ORR Varsity Swim Team, which will begin its third season this November. Tickets can also be bought at the door the day of the event. Thank you in advance for coming out to support our great swim team.

Good Old Country Auction

Come on down to the Rochester Country Fair and enjoy a Good Old Country Auction sponsored by Camara's Auction! You name and can sell it!

The Auction will take place at the Rochester Country Fair on Thursday, August 14 from 6:00 - 9:00 pm under the big tent provided by Chase Canopy Company. Fair admission on Thursday evening is $4. Admission for children ages 5 and under is free.

St. Philip's Episcopal Church

This year is the 130th Summer Season at St. Philip's Episcopal Church. Clergy from nearby and around the country visit the "Church by the Town Beach" in Mattapoisett from June 29 to August 31. All are welcome.

Services, using the 1928 Book of Common Prayer, are at 8:00 am and 10:00 am.

Friends of the Mattapoisett Bike Path

Explore Mattapoisett and the Tri-Town area by bike! Take a self-guided tour using the new Bike Friendly Mattapoisett map which details the best riding roads in Tri-Town in addition to parts of Fairhaven, Acushnet and Wareham. It shows public restrooms and bike-friendly eateries. It's now available at Town Wharf General Store, No Kidding, Pen and Pendulum, or On the Go for a $5 donation to the Friends of the Bike Path.

If you prefer group riding, on Thursday evening, August 7, there will be a ride sponsored by the Coalition for Buzzards Bay and South Coast Bikeway Alliance. Ride starts at 6:00 pm at Plumb Corner in Rochester. Helmets required. There are 12- and 25-mile routes along a section of the Coalition's October Watershed ride. This ride is part of a series called "Bike The Bay," which explores the great bike riding in the Buzzards Bay watershed. Go to www.savebuzzardsbay.org or www.southcoastbikeway.com for more group riding.

Community Foundation's offices by 3:00 pm on Friday, August 29. Applications are available at the Town House in Marion, the Council on Aging, and the Community Foundation, 30 Cornell Street, New Bedford, MA 02740, or by calling 508-996-8253. They can also be downloaded at www.cfsema.org.

The Marion Community Fund was established in 1999 by a private donor to provide qualified Marion homeowners with property tax relief. The Fund's goal is to preserve the town's diversity and character by providing property tax relief for Marion homeowners who are a key part of the town's makeup and who might be forced to leave Marion due to higher taxes. There are no age restrictions on this grant.

The Marion Community Fund hopes people of all ages who qualify will apply. If you are a Marion homeowner, have owned your home for at least one year, have earned income of less than $25,000 (single) or $37,500 (married), and have assets of $46,000 or less (single) or $63,000 or less (married), excluding your home, you may be eligible for tax relief. All payments will be made to the Town of Marion and credited toward the grant recipient's tax bill.

events, crafts and food that the fair offers.

How it works: 600 squares will be sold in this random game of chance. Each parcel of real estate costs only $5, so get your tickets before they're gone! Tickets will be sold in advance only and will not be sold at the Fair. Participants are randomly assigned a horizontal and vertical coordinate on the Cow-Chip Bingo game board.

The first place winning square will be the first cow plop made, followed by the second cow plop, then the third cow plop. Prizes of $500, $300 and $200 will be awarded in that order for the first, second and third cow plop. A complete list of rules and other event information can be found on the Fair's website at www.rochesterma.com.

Take your chance on the gastronomical actions of a cow while supporting the Rochester Country Fair! Tickets are on sale now by visiting Bev at Matt's Blackboard Café or by contacting any of the Fair Committee Members.

SLT Brainard Marsh Summer Yoga Series

Back by popular demand, the Sippican Lands Trust (SLT) is proud to offer a summer yoga series that will be held at our Brainard Marsh property located off of Delano Road in Marion. We will be offering both adult and children's classes this year. These events are free and open to the public, so we hope to see you there!

Angela Curry will return this year as our guest adult instructor. She will lead a class on Saturday, August 16 at 9:00 am.

Lynda Jacobvitz will teach a kids' yoga session on Saturday, August 23 at 10:00 am. Parents are free to participate with the kids or simply enjoy the beauty of the site during the session. We just request no drop offs.

Grab your yoga mat and some water and get ready to get healthy surrounded by a spectacular view! Parking is available at the site. Please do not hesitate to contact Executive Director Robin Shields at 508-748-3080 or online at robinshields@sippicanlandstrust.org.

Marion Town Events Calendar

The Town of Marion, in conjunction with the Friends of the Marion Council on Aging, is pleased to make available an online Town Events calendar through the Town of Marion website, www.marionma.gov. Our goals for the Events calendar are to:

- Increase citizen awareness of and participation in community-wide events;
- Provide non-profit, Marion organizations the vehicle to list/post their events on the Town website; and
- Decrease scheduling conflicts among Marion organizations.

The Events calendar is a free service provided for and maintained by the Town of Marion. It is now available to Marion non-profit organizations and can be used to promote educational, social, cultural, athletic, or recreational events open to the general public. All calendar listings must follow the Town of Marion guidelines and be submitted using the online Event Notice form that can be obtained from the calendar editor, Michele Bissonnette, Assistant Town Clerk, mbissonnette@marionma.gov.

I Found the Aardvark!

Each week, hidden somewhere in the pages of The Wanderer is a tiny drawing of an aardvark. The little guy you are looking for looks exactly like the one pictured above (but don't put down this page as your answer, there's another one hidden somewhere in this issue).

Once you find the aardvark you can submit your answer online and if you are right you will get Aardvark Points! You can then use these points to get cool Aardvark Prizes!

To enter visit: www.wanderer.com and Click on I Found the Aardvark

In the July 31, 2014 issue the Aardvark was on page 71!
